WELCOME TO AARHUS!

In this mini-guide, we have included some information that we thought would be helpful in making your stay in Aarhus as pleasant as possible. There are several categories of information, including: Language, prices, payment, transportation, accommodation, eating out, shopping, tourism, museums and attractions, and health. If you need further information, please ask at the information desk at the conference.

Aarhus is the second largest city in Denmark with around 250,000 citizens. Due to Aarhus University, there are a very large number of students in the city, giving it a very young population compared to other cities of the same size. With more than 45,000 students, the university plays an important role in everyday life in Aarhus. Although not a large city, there are several tourist attractions, among the most prominent being the Old Town (Den Gamle By), Moesgård Prehistoric Museum, ARoS Art Museum, the summer residence of Queen Margrethe (Marselisborg), as well as walks along the seaside. For more tourist information about Aarhus, see the official tourism homepage: www.visitaarhus.com

Language

Because the general level of education is fairly high among citizens in Denmark, many people speak English. As such, when you go shopping and visit restaurants, it is safe to assume that people will understand at least some English, and you may ask them to translate menus, prices, etc. Some Danes will also speak German, French, and/or Spanish, but English is the second language spoken by most Danes.

Prices

Denmark is fairly expensive compared to most other countries. Part of the explanation is that Denmark has a set minimum wage that is quite high (110 kr. per hour = $17 per hour), as well as having a general tax level that is also high (e.g., income tax is approx. 50%). Your bills also include a 25% VAT, which is added to all goods and services.

Payment

Almost all shops, cafes, and restaurants accept credit cards. However, some credit cards are not accepted in all shops downtown (you will need to inquire before purchasing). If you need to exchange money, Nordea on "Strøget" exchanges money (although with an added fee). However, make sure that you bring along your passport, as the bank needs this for their records. It is also possible to make a withdrawal from cash machines (located all around the city center). Visa and Mastercard can be used for withdrawal in almost all cash machines, while American Express and Euro Card can also be used in cash machines from

Transportation

There are several transportation options in Aarhus (and in Denmark more generally) from which you may choose:

Car-rental: If you wish to rent a car, try Europcar ((+45) 89 33 11 11), Hertz ((+45) 70 33 66 99), and Avis ((+45) 70 24 77 30). Bring your driver's license, passport, and credit card when collecting the car. These three companies typically have special offers for foreign citizens (e.g., renting a car for three days may come to approx. 1200-1500 kr. ($180-225), including insurance, tax, and free kilometers).

Buses: The public transportation in Aarhus is generally reliable, although sometimes with minor delays. Most buses will run every 15 minutes during the day hours and every 20-30 minutes during evening hours, stopping around midnight. There are also night buses available after midnight, however, keep in mind that the fare for riding a bus late at night is double the price, regardless of how far you travel.

One normal trip (prior to midnight) will typically cost you 20 kr. ($3), as long as you travel within the city center. You pay by entering at the middle of the bus (or sometimes at the back) and using the automated pay machine located there. (The machine only accepts cash). If you plan to travel a lot by public transport, you may consider buying a Multi Trip Ticket (10 charges). A multi trip ticket in Midttrafik app is cheaper than a single ticket, and it can be the best ticket if you plan to travel a few times with bus and Letbanen. Another option is the Tourist ticket (24, 48 or 72 hours), which offers unlimited travel in all of Central Denmark Region on Midttrafik's buses (including night buses), and Letbanen. Tourist ticket is not valid for travel with other trains. Prices vary according to the duration of the ticket (24 hours = 160 kr; 48 hours = 240 kr; 72 hours = 320 kr. The Tourist ticket cannot be purchased on the bus or at Letbanen's stations, but must be purchased on the Midttrafik app.

The following buses stop near the University: 1A, 5A, 12, 13, 100, and 200.

Letbanen (Aarhus light rail): operates between the central station in Aarhus and Aarhus University Hospital and also stops at Aarhus University with six departures per hour. You have to buy a ticket before you get on Letbanen. You can buy a single ticket in the ticket machine (rejsekort ticket machine) at one of Letbanen's stations. You can only pay with card - not with cash. You cannot buy tickets in Letbanen.

<https://www.midttrafik.dk/english/plan-your-journey/letbanen/>

See this travel homepage for more information: www.midttrafik.dk/in-english.aspx

For additional travel information, you can also download a free and easy to use travel application for your phone from www.rejseplanen.dk. It has all the information about public transportation you might need. You can enter your desired destination and your starting location and a guide will help you find your way. For an English version, you can push the “flag” in the right-hand corner. This application works everywhere in Denmark.

Airport bus to/from Aarhus: There are shuttle buses between Aarhus and Aarhus Airport in direct connection with the arriving and departing flights. The trip from the central train station in Aarhus to the airport is approx. 45 minutes. The bus also has a stop at Randersvej, located close to the University and CON AMORE. The bus number for this shuttle is 925X. Tickets are purchased on board from the driver, and can be paid with Danish kroner, Norwegian kroner, US dollars, English pounds, or Euros. Visacard, Mastercard, and JCB may be used as well.

Taxis: For taxi service, contact Aarhus Taxi ((+45) 89 48 48 48). Note that travelling by taxi in Denmark is quite expensive (e.g., during the day there is a starting fee of 33 kr ($5) followed by a charge of 8 kr ($1.20) per kilometer thereafter, while the rate is higher at night).

Bicycles: In Denmark, many people prefer to use bicycles, and as you may have noticed there are separate lanes for bicycles along many streets in Aarhus. Please look out before you cross these lanes, as many cyclists go fairly fast. Also, look out for cyclists when you enter or leave a bus, as they are not always prone to stop for bus passengers.

If you'd like to travel by bicycle while you are visiting Aarhus, you may use the “city-bikes”. These are publically available bicycles located at several different bike stands in Aarhus (for example by Radisson Blu and Stakladen). They are easily recognized because the wheels are used for advertising. It is in principle free to borrow a city bike, but you will need a 20 kr coin for the coin slot. When you return the city bike at one of the predetermined bicycle stations, you will get your coin back.

See this homepage for more information: www.aarhus.dk/sitecore/content/Subsites/AarhusBycykel/Home/English.aspx?sc\_lang=da

Walking: If you like to walk, Aarhus is almost perfect. The distances between the university, the city center, and other places of interest are not too great (e.g., from the university to City Hall is approx. 3 kilometers). Aarhus is considered to be a very safe city, and you can safely walk in most areas of Aarhus even during the evening and night hours.

Eating out

Aarhus has a large number of restaurants and cafes to choose from when eating out. In addition to restaurants that serve traditional and modern Danish cuisine, there are numerous other types of restaurants, including Italian, French, Chinese, Greek, Japanese, Thai, Indian, and Spanish. Eating out typically takes place around 7 pm in Denmark, and most restaurants close at 10 pm.

One popular eating activity in Aarhus (probably due to the large population of students) is having brunch at one of the cafes along the riverside or in the older part of the city center (“Latinerkvarteret” or the Latin Quarter). The cafes will typically have a brunch/breakfast menu that is served from 9 am to 1 pm. They do tend to be a bit overpriced, especially the cafes along the riverside, but if the weather is nice it is possible to have your meal outside.

Because the minimum wage is fairly high in Denmark, the people working in the restaurants are not heavily dependent on tips.

Thus, in most places you do not have to leave a tip. In nice restaurants you may wish to leave a tip, but typically somewhere between 3-5 % will be fine (perhaps up to a maximum of 10% in very nice restaurants).

During the weekends, it is often necessary to make a reservation, and it is a good idea at all times if you are going to be more than 3-4 people. Most restaurants and cafes will have a home page where you can study their menu and prices beforehand and also find the contact information.

On the following pages is a list of suggested restaurants, cafes, wine and beer bars, and other options you might consider while staying in Aarhus, but they are by no means the only options available.

Danish Food

For lunch, try "Rådhuscafeen" (Sønder Allé 3, (+45) 86 12 37 74), which serves traditional Danish food, including "smørrebrød" (open sandwiches), a typical Danish lunch item. These sandwiches basically consist of dark rye bread with a generous topping, which may include different assortments of fish, shrimp, eggs, pates, and/or different cold cuts. The lunch is relatively heavy, as is the case with much traditional Danish food.

www.raadhuus-kafeen.dk

For dinner, try "Nordisk Spisehus" (M.P. Bruungsgade 31, (+45) 86 17 70 99), where you can choose between 2-3 starters, main dishes, and desserts, all based on Nordic ingredients and cooking traditions.

Another place to go shopping is the older city center – "Latinerkvarteret", consisting of the following streets: Badstuegade, Klostergade, Volden, Studsgade, Borggade, Rosensgade, and Graven. Here you will find smaller and more specialized shops. There is only one in-door shopping mall – "Bruuns Galleri" located at the back of the train station ("Banegårdspladsen").
